Re: Jane Gibson

Interview with JAMES GLYNN

Operative met Jim Russell at Lee and Hardy Sts. as per appointment and proceeded to locate James Glunn. Made inquiries on Sanford Street and finally located GLYNN at his place of employment, The Rariton Coal Company on Sanford St. Mr. Russell then left me and I interviewed JAMES GLYNN in the office of the Coal company, Mr. GLYNN is a driver on a coal truck at present.

He stated that he lived on the Gibson farm with his wife for about 5 months when he became sick. Later Mrs. Gibson went to Somerville where she secured dispossess papers and had him removed from the farm. His wife had to secure rooms temporarily in town. Mrs. Gibson even had trouble with the moving man who came to remove his belongings and put him off the place also. He later had to get another moving man to move his furniture and belongings from the farm. He further stated that Mrs. Gibson owes him some money but he does not believe he will ever get it. He states that his wife did washing for Revolinsky and Peter Rolewitz and at present is washing for Peter Rolewitz.

I asked Mr. GLYNN if he ever heard of the Battles and he said that he had and that Cecil Battle lived at the farm before he (Glynn) went to live there. I asked him if he had heard that Battle had been intimate with Mrs. Gibson and he stated that he had often heard it mentioned, but that it is hearsay. I asked him if he ever saw Erling out there and he replied that he had heard that Erling had been there several times. I asked him if his wife did work for Erling and he replied that he did not know.

Mr. GLYNN had to go out with a truck of coal and the interview ended. I told him I would see him again soon.
